Business Lesson from HP History:
"It became obvious to me that we had nothing that would solve his problem and RCA did. I gave the customer the RCA part number. I told the Sales Engineer that his job was twofold; first to solve customer problems and second to sell HP products, in that order. He was angry with me. Two months went by. The customer called him to help solve another problem. This time, HP did have a product that solved the customer's problem. The sales engineer was as happy as a kid with a new bicycle."
